Rattlers get first win in blowout fashion, face Gurdon next

GENOA CENTRAL - The Murfreesboro Rattlers (1-2) easily dispatched the Genoa Central Dragons (0-3) 40-6 last Friday night to earn their first win of the 2024 season.

Brody Maroon would lead the Rattlers in rushing with 119 yards on 12 carries and a touchdown.

Bubba Stinson scored two TDs and accrued 96 yards on nine carries, while Lathan Compton had 79 yards on 17 carries.

Senior QB Laytan Wilcher was 2/4 on the night for 82 yards and a TD. Kooper Caldwell was 2/8 during his time under center for 67 yards, a touchdown and an interception.

Kale Burns would snag two receptions for a pair of scores, totaling 123 yards.

Compton would lead the defensive effort with 14 tackles, while Stinson had 11. Caldwell would record 10 tackles with an interception, Cameron Stevens accrued 10 tackles, while Maroon had nine tackles and a fumble recovery.

Cash Lowery and Logan Burrus each had eight tackles apiece.

Prior to the game, Chesshir had said his team needed to "get its swagger back." While based on the final score it seemed like a definitive mission accomplished, Chesshir still feels there are areas of improvement for his team to focus upon.

"For the most part [mission accomplished], but we still did some things we obviously have to get better at. We played pretty well defensively in the first half, forcing a pair of turn-

He said the offense stalled a couple times in the first half, "but we were able to move the

Moving the football hasn't been his squad's issue this season, however. "We haven't had a big issue with that this year."

Chesshir said his address to the team was to come out of the break and continue to dominate, which has been a bugaboo for his squad early this season.

"We still haven't proven ourselves to come out and play hard and fast in the third quarter ... I wanted to come out and have that flawless third quarter, and I didn't think we did that. We did go down and score on the first possession to go up 32-0, which was good, but then we became a little complacent with where we were. I wasn't happy with our effort defensively in the second half ... we just started taking it on the chin. There was a drive that Genoa scored on in the third quarter in which they just lined up and ran it right at us. We didn't do a very good job in the box of taking on the run. There's just some things we've gotta fix that we can get better at moving forward."

However, a win is a win, something Chesshir couldn't help but confess, especially against a significantly larger school in terms of student population.

"It was good to get a win ... always good. We had some explosive plays offensively and we limited them defensively. You can say whatever you want to about Genoa, how they've struggled so far this season, but anytime you can beat a [class] 4-A football program, we are happy to do it."

THIS WEEK AT GURDON

The Rattlers will travel to face off against Gurdon in their first conference game of the

The Go-Devils sit at 1-2 on the season, featuring a win over Parkers Chapel 41-18 sandwiched between losses to Magnet Cove 24-14 and Marked Tree 42-14.

Chesshir said Gurdon was "very much improved" over last year's team. "Last year offensively they ran a Gun-T [offensive formation] and I didn't think they were as productive out of that as what they used to be. They've gotten back to what they are good at - under center in the wishbone and just running straight at you. That's something those kids thrive in and are good at. They have simplified the game and are just playing smashmouth football."

Defensively, he said Gurdon comes in two varieties – 4-3 cover three and 4-3 cover two – and "that's about it." "They are very simple but play hard and get after you. It's a very much improved football team. They are going to be a problem for a lot of teams in our conference, in my opinion."

In effect restarting the season over at 0-0 with the entry into conference play this week, Chesshir feels his team should be prepared.

"Absolutely excited. We've learned a lot the last three weeks - we have to continue to respond the right way, coming off the win versus Genoa. You have to build off of that, plus take the things we didn't do well and make sure they are corrected or eliminated. There is no doubt that intensity picks up just a little bit in conference play."

In order to start out on the right foot with a win at Gurdon, Chesshir said it will all come down to "making big stops on first and second down defensively."

"You have to be good on first and second down, create negative plays, get them behind the sticks, be more aggressive defensively. It is critical ... can't give them third and short. Their, and our, style of offense is not a third-and-ten offense. We have to get them out of what they are good at."

Offensively, he said his Rattlers will have to sustain drives and "do what we are really good at" with ball control.

"Obviously, I'd love some explosive plays, and score like we did last week, but we'll have to drive the ball. Be physical."

MURFREESBORO JUNIOR HIGH

The Junior Rattlers will play at home against Gurdon this Thursday night at 7 p.m.

Now at 1-1-1 on the season after their 38-18 win over Mineral Springs at Nashville last week, Chesshir said he really appreciate MJHS'

"What I love about our junior high football team is that they play extremely hard, especially defensively, the fly around. I've been very pleased with just the physicality." Offensively, he said while Jarren Burgess, Joel Whisenhunt and Cale Humphry have powered the offense this season thus far and "done a good job with the football," he said he is happy with the growth that the team is making ... "with a lot of room to improve," he added quickly thereafter.

Tourism Commission considers electric car chargers near square

MURFREESBORO - The Murfreesboro Advertising and Tourism Commission will consider the implementation of an electric car charger at the former City Service Station location

The group heard from a XOVA Charging representative - a group that has chargers located in seven states – about the addition. He said that the prices of charging units had come down drastically in the past year or two.

The commission was told that they could sell local businesses advertisements that would appear on screen and that they could set the charging fee to whatever they wished via a QR code that the user would access via phone prior It was said the cheapest functional unit would be an 60-kilowatt option, with a full charge time of approximately two hours, costing $7,500.

The group said that would fulfil the mission of keeping the individuals on the square with enough time to shop during the charge. Not only would faster charging options not accomplish that mission (a 240-killowatt option with a charging time of 20-30 minutes, costing $32,000), but would also require a greater electrical connection than was readily available at the City Service Station currently. The systems were capable of operating off either a cellular or wifi connection – and the location is already set with the latter.

The cost of a quick charge (at average cost) would be approximately $18, should the commission charge the average price of .35-.45-cents per minute. It was also stated that government rebates could net up to 40% off and that XOVA would fill out the necessary paperwork.

XOVA collects 4% of the charging costs to maintain their network and offers a standard two-year warranty on their units that can be extended to five years if required.

Boardmember Caleb Howell said the Crater of Diamonds State Park probably received an average of two requests per week for charging capabilities, and that the site would likely look into their own charging sites long term.

It was stated that while there was a dearth of charging possibilities between Arkadelphia and Hope, but the questioned whether people would likely "go out of their way" if they were only needing a charge. However, if they were here on vacation, they would likely take advantage of the ability to charge their vehicle.

The topic will see further consideration at the

The commission's board members were told to make especial note – now and in the near future -- of the digmurfreesboro. com website summary included in their package of information. Board Chairman Jamie Terrell told the group that they would have to have the discussion of continuing the service or diverting the money elsewhere shortly after the turn of the year.

The commission voted to allot the Murfreesboro Chamber of Commerce up to $5,000 discretionary funds for both Halloween decorations for the haunted house at the former Pike County Hospital and Christmas decorations this holiday season.

Terrell commented that the haunted house effort last year was a success and "brought a lot of people to town."

Quorum Court discusses fate of former museum

MURFREESBORO - Revisiting an item of old business from August, the Pike County Quorum Court was told by County Judge Eddie Howard that by all apparent evidence the dilapidating log cabin structure located at the old city park adjacent to the tennis courts did indeed belong to the county.

He said the structure was formerly a museum for county artifacts that was established by a 1976 grant that was obtained and reported in a feature article in a local newspaper in 1978.

Howard described the structure as "shot from about 4 foot down" due to termite damage and told the court that Amity resident Joe May had requested timber from the site should the county decide to remove the structure.

Howard said he told May he could have the entirety of the structure if he would tear it down, but that May had indicated he "didn't have that kind of manpower."

However, Howard said at least if they stacked useable lumber on a trailer for May, the county wouldn't have to dispose

"I've heard of no one wanting to restore it," said Howard when asked by the court if any group was interested in preserving the site. He also admitted there was probably grants available to do so, though he did not know of any specifically. "Even if we got a grant – if renovation was even possible -- who would want to use it?"

"With how it looks, there's probably no other options [than removal] ... don't throw away any historical items, but the building is shot," said justice Johnny Plyler, noting he had zero recollection of any discussion on the building in his 38 years on the court.

Further discussion on the issue made the case that the structure was probably a liability issue waiting to happen, especially in light of the tennis courts being used by local high school students.

Howard said that items could go to either the Archives and Historical Society in Murfreesboro or to the Depot in Glenwood, but all he had ascertained was in the building one early morning was a filing cabinet that had fallen through the

"Any museum pieces are largely cleaned out of the structure, if not all." said Howard, noting the museum formerly contained curated guns and was also used a location for Farm Bureau dinners.

He did acknowledge that a complete covered wagon could be held in the building behind the cabin.

To complete previous discussions about the site, Howard said that he had a bid for the cost of resurfacing the tennis courts located on county property, but that it was "high" and he would get another by next month.

He added that some of the cost should go to South Pike County Schools, whose athletes utilized the courts for high school

Justice Paul Baker took an alternate position – that none of the cost of refurbishing the tennis courts should be borne by

"If the county fixes tennis courts for Murfreesboro, we'd have to do it for every community in the county. I can see the writing on the wall ... when you are spending taxpayer dollars, you don't open a big can worms."

The issue was tabled until next month, when the second bid will be obtained for comparison and an investigation of grant availability will be completed.

In other county matters, Howard asked the court for approval of a new tractor and boom mowing attachment.

He said the county was in possession of a pair – a 2012 and 2015 John Deere 6110m with the former spending more time in the shop than in use. Howard had a bid from Little Rock Equipment Sales for $188,000 - minus $28,000 trade in for the 2012 tractor if the county wanted to part with it. He said the cost of the 2015 tractor was $85,000. "That's just how much they have gone up recently," he said of the 6110m tractor with four-wheel drive and cabin air conditioning.

He was asked if a two-wheel drive was available to save money, and replied they had stopped carrying such because they didn't sell well.

Baker also inquired if simply the attachment could be purchased for use on the old tractor, noting the tractor "is the big expense."

Howard said the tractor was not trou-

State universities mostly expand enrollments for fall

STATE CAPITOL WEEK IN REVIEW

Senator Steve Crowell

LITTLE ROCK – Most of the universities in Arkansas reported increases in enrollment for the fall semester.

The state's funding formula for higher education no longer emphasizes enrollment, due to passage of Act 148 of 2017. It changed the focus of state funding to a model based on productivity. One measure is retention of students and graduation rates. Another factor is the university's mission, and how much

For their official count of students, universities take a snapshot on the 11th day of class. At the University of Arkansas at Fayetteville, enrollment continued to increase for the fourth consecutive year, going up 4.6 percent more than enrollment during Total enrollment was a record 22,600 students. Of those, 28.859 are undergraduates and 16,519 are from Arkansas.

Arkansas State University at Jonesboro also set enrollment records this fall. On the 11th day of the semester enrollment was 16,687 students, which is 12 percent higher than last year.

The graduate school at ASU is the largest in Arkansas. Its enrollment increased by 9 percent, to 5,741students. Of the overall student population, 72 percent are from Arkansas.

ASU operates a campus in Mexico with 961 students. Although their degrees are considered to be from ASU, the university doesn't request state funding to subsidize their educations, according to an ASU spokesman.

Football weather

Why do the seasons change?

Fall in our neck of the woods is actually a conglomeration of seasons. Two are important human caused events, deer season and football season. The other season is the celestially caused

A survey done some years ago of Harvard students asked if they knew the reason Earth has seasons. Most answered that it is summer when Earth is close to the Sun, and winter when we are farther away. This answer is somewhat correct because of the Earth's elliptical orbit, but the main reason for the seasons is because the Earth is tilted 23 ½ degrees on its axis.

Summertime in Pike County happens when our part of the planet nods toward the Sun. We have winter when we are on the other side of our orbit, and tilted away from the Sun.

Autumn and spring are the in-between seasons, when Earth's tilt is sideways to the Sun. The heat of the sun is more evenly distributed over the planet which makes for the milder weather we generally have during these transitional seasons. In the fall we call it football weather.

Mars, Jupiter, and the constellation Orion continue to dazzle the pre-dawn sky. Low in the west, at sunset, Venus is making a very bright showing.

Q: How do you treat Crohn's disease?

A: Crohn's disease is one of several inflammatory bowel diseases that cause chronic inflammation and swelling in the digestive tract, most commonly in parts of the small and large intestines. The National Institute of Diabetes and Digestive and Kidney Diseases estimates that more than 500,000 people in the U.S. have the autoimmune condition.

It is unknown what causes Crohn's disease, but a malfunction of the immune system is a factor. Ileocolitis, inflammation in the lower small intestine and part of the large intestine, is the most common type of Crohn's disease. Many are diagnosed with Crohn's disease in their late teens through their early 30s, but the condition can occur at any age.

Risk factors include cigarette smoking and family history. Symptoms include a lack of appetite, abdominal pain and cramping, diarrhea and weight loss. Crohn's disease can cause complications such as anemia, bowel obstructions, malnutrition and ulcers. It may also increase the risk of blood clots and colon cancer. Crohn's disease cannot be cured, but medications such as antibiotics and corticosteroids can help manage symptoms. Contact your health care provider for a treatment plan.

The University of Arkansas at Little Rock reported enrollment of 5,434 undergraduates, up 3.7 percent from a year ago. However, the number of graduate students declined from 1,535 to 1,479 to make the overall increase about two percent.

The University of Central Arkansas at Conway reported a strong increase in enrollment, thanks in large part to a surge in its freshman class this year. Overall enrollment is 10,123 students, up 3.4 percent from 2023. This year's incoming freshman class, with 2,183 students, is up 26 percent over last year.

Arkansas Tech at Russellville reported mixed results on the 11th day of class. Its campus at Ozark had an increase of 7.4 percent over last year, to 2,115 students. On the other hand its main campus at Russellville saw a decreased headcount of 9,062 compared to 9,487 last year. University officials attributed the decrease to a change in scholarship procedures that were necessary to keep the program within budget.

Southern Arkansas University at Magnolia also reported a decrease in enrollment of eight percent, to 4,733 students, from last years' record enrollment of 5,126.

SAU officials expected the decline, based on lower birth rates that resulted in lower numbers of high school graduates within the region. Also, the university saw a drop in international students because of unpredictable visa approvals. On the bright side, applications for business degrees and in the education department are both up dramatically.

The University of Arkansas at Monticello reported an increase of 92 students, from 2761 last year to 2853 this year.

Henderson State in Arkadelphia reported enrollment of 2,061 students, a decrease of 3.5 percent from last fall.

The University of Arkansas at Pine Bluff reported an overall decrease on two percent, top 2,049 students. Enrollment at the University of Arkansas at Fort Smith has 5,512 students, just two fewer than last year.

'Dear Preacher'

By Buddy Ray, Murfreesboro Church of Christ

THE MOST IMPORTANT DAY OF MY LIFE

Today is the most important day of my life. Yesterday is gone and tomorrow may never come. Matthew 6:34 tells me not to worry about tomorrow, for tomorrow will worry about its own things. Sufficient for the day is its own troubles. According to James 4:14, I do not know what will happen tomorrow. My life is simply a vapor that appears for a little while and then vanishes away.

Because of the brevity of life and the uncertainty of today as if it were my last day on earth.

Each day I have an opportunity to enjoy life and to show everyone around me what Jesus Christ has done and is doing for me.

Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father in Heaven.

The world today needs some good news. That news morrow, I should live each is the Gospel and what God can do for your life and how he can change everything for you. I need to uncover my light and let it fully shine for Jesus so that the world may see Christ living in me.

The more a light shines, the In the Sermon on the warmer it becomes. The more Mount, Christ told me just I do for the cause of Christ, the how to do this. Matthew 5:16 - more I want to do! Christ tells us in Revelation 3 not to be lukewarm, but to become hot in my work for the Lord.

Scripture gives us good advice for daily living in the following verses:

PHILLIPIANS 3:13-14 Brethren, I do not count myself to have apprehended; but one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind and reaching forward to those things which are ahead, I press toward the goal for the prize of the upward call of God in Christ Jesus.

JAMES 4:15 - Instead we ought to say, if the Lord will, we shall live and do this or

As we begin a new week, let us live for today, pray for the Lord's will to be done, and let our light shine before men. Enjoy this week serving our Lord!

ble free – had 45,000 hours on it and was not reliable enough for that plan of attack. "We're just not getting enough done."

It was also noted by the court that they had a policy of purchasing in-county if the cost was within 10% of an out-of-county purchase.

Howard admitted he had not investigated the three in-county options, but certainly would. He had the one bid from Little Rock because it was where the purchase was made before and was a pre-approved bidding outlet by the government.

The matter will be further discussed in the October meeting. A citizen – Danny Dougan – was on the agenda to make an official complaint about the Pike County Assessor's phoner answering system, but he was not present at the meeting. Assessor Staci Sewart said that Dougan had made several complaints - which Plyler and Howard both confirmed - and referenced a post made by Dougan on social media that stated "how ridiculous is it when you call a county office to just take care of business and you know they're there and you get an answering service that tells you the hours that they're open!!!" Stewart said during the time of that call, she was out of town at a class and one of her deputy assessors was at lunch. The in-office deputy was helping a citizen with a matter. As for not returning a message left by Dougan, Stewart said his complaints were inconsistent at best, because her office phone system does not allow the leaving of leaving messages – as backed up by phone provider South Central Connect. Stewart said her office was providing Dougan with information regularly, noting that Dougan's retirement home business required information often for residents. Plyler went a bit further with the complaint and an answering

"Can we micromanage elected official's offices? We only exist to appropriate money eliminating the need to go find several file folders. ... I don't know that we even have that power." Stewart then asked the court for funds to continue employing paper files that date back over a hundred years. She had been paying the employee with discretionary funds derived from the state, but those had been extinguished with "lots of scanning yet to do" including surveys for each parcel in a person to complete her office's scanning project to digitize old

Pike County. She said the scanned papers were extremely helpful in searches, eliminating the need to locate and go through several Plyler asked if the project could obtain grants, to which Stewart replied not that she knew of, and definitely not via the state assessors' association, unlike the state circuit clerks' association, who does give financial grants for the scanning of older documents. No motion was made, so no action was taken on the issue.

Judge Howard announced that the 2025 budget committee would be comprised of Johnny Plyler, Robbie Crocker, Richard Mohlenhoff and Jerry Fendley.

The county handbook committee is open to all members of the Barbara Flowers, director of the regional West Central Area

Agency on Aging (AAA), was at the meeting and asked to make

Pike County's two senior citizen centers in Murfreesboro and Glenwood will soon be under the direction of the state agency, after being officially relinquished by the Central Arkansas Development Council (CADC) at the end of October.

a statement before adjournment.

Flowers said the federal Older Americans Act gave the AAA responsibility over the state's senior centers from inception. $ar{v}$ They did not want us to have to operate them directly, but ...' said Flowers. "As things have gotten more expensive, all over the state of Arkansas, the eight [AAA's] have had to assume these responsibilities and operations as the contractors continue to pull Flowers said the West Central AAA has been "very blessed" in their ten county area with the contractor relationship for over 30 years.

"This was quite a shock to us, when CADC made their announcement in May, and now we have CHI pulling out, so it's a

Flowers said of the six centers formerly under CADC control that they have been preparing for operations and ensuring staff. "Here [Murfreesboro] you'll have the same staff - these [senior] participants should not notice anything different when they come into the center. It's not happening like that everywhere. In is there now." Flowers said they were making the transition as "smooth as

Pike County the majority of the staff will be the same staff that

"It's not that we don't know what senior centers do, because we have sponsored 13 of them for many years, but it just the operation part and the way it happened - the contract ending - where we will have nine months (through June 2025) to deal with the percentage of funding that's left. So you'll probably see us out and about in the community because we are going to need all the support we can get. We appreciate all the support we have gotten."

Flowers told Howard they would need a new lease for use of the building – the previous lease was issued in 1986.

Plyler asked Flowers about federal funding, and said "it doesn't matter any more unless you are an illegal [alien]."

"Believe me, it's important to us, but the federal government has redirected it's priorities - and it's no longer to our citizens, it's only important to the illegals that they are bringing in and feeding. That's a fact ... we don't need to hide that, but everywhere we go, we want to hide what the federal government is doing to our taxpayers and the citizens of the United States. It's wrong what is happening at the federal level when they are cutting the funding to our people, and we are less important than the illegals that are in our country than our people that pay our taxes to get to be old. Some of these people don't have any money left, but the federal government is the one neglecting the seniors and us. And then they put it back to us and act like we are the ones that are bad. We're not the bad guys, it's the federal government redirecting our money. If somebody doesn't start talking about this, we're going to get run over and the only people that will be punished are the people in our society - our elderly - that has no money and needs help. They paid their taxes growing up now they're old and need help. But, our government doesn't care about those people any more. We do – the taxpayers – the local people do, but the ones reappropriating the money don't, and that needs to be talked about, seriously," said Plyler. Flowers said the issue had reached federal levels – with the AAA being contacted by Rep. Bruce Westerman's and Senator Tom Cotton's offices.

"That doesn't usually happen," said Flowers.

"[Arkansas'] elected officals care, but you can't control it when above them they don't reappropriate it the right way. It's the President's way as they see fit, which is a different way than I think he needs to."

Flowers assured the court the AAA would "do the best with what they've got and try to raise money as we go along to match with whatever funding we receive. We appreciate all your help and you know Mrs. Vickie [Hutson] – she's awesome and knows everybody. We are very excited she is staying with us." Plyler thanked Flowers for their efforts, and she replied "You are welcome ... we are very excited about it now. It was kind of scary at first, but we are going to take care of our seniors – that's what we do."
